

Antiquity Journal Announcement

Written by Kevin Lane

Friday, 16 August 2013 04:33 -

The latest issue of Antiquity has just appeared (<http://journal.antiquity.ac.uk/welcome>), with articles covering archaeology in Asia, Africa and the Americas as well as Europe. Our mission is to publish archaeological research from all parts of the world, and all periods of the past, across a wide range of themes. We are particularly keen to encourage submissions on Central and South America, and from Latin American archaeologists.

Please contact us if you have an article in mind that you'd like to discuss with us: we'll be very happy to advise, and indeed we are willing to work with authors to help develop their articles and make them ready for publication: our key criterion is high quality content. Do contact us at editor@antiquity.ac.uk or submit an article via our online portal at <http://journal.antiquity.ac.uk/contribute>.

Our standard research articles are 5000 words in length; all submissions are subject to peer review. With four issues per year we can offer relatively speedy publication. Antiquity has a large, diverse and international readership, and provides an ideal medium for bringing archaeological results to the attention of a wide audience.