

For a couple of years, the Consejo Nacional de Cultura (CNC) restart the publication of their Revista Nacional de Cultura, a publication that has become a reference in the field of editions dedicated to heritage and social sciences.

The numbers 15 and 16 of this publication are devoted to publishing the proceedings of the III Ecuadorian Congress of Anthropology and Archaeology, held in Guayaquil, from 6 to 10 October 2008. The scale of such a project has led to the CNC to edit three volumes containing a miscellany of the current state of archaeological and anthropological studies in the region.
